

FUTURE IN FOOD IRELAND – SAI GLOBAL HIVE SESSION

Presenter: Dave Garforth, Senior Consultant – Seafood

Managing Risk: Building Trust in Food Supply Chains

SAI Global has developed end-to-end risk management solutions that help food organisations across the world protect their brand and build trust with suppliers and customers.

Food businesses today have to perform in an ever complex environment. The connection between complexity and risk is strong. Complexity Index shows Western companies had just four to seven performance requirements. Today, they have anything from 25 to 40 and some are very contradictory- low price – high quality; global market-local produce; fast supply-reliable supply; fresh, wholesome- shelf-stable, durable. Understanding and managing risk is essential for food businesses to make the right decisions that drive performance, protect brand and build trust in markets and consumers.

With offices in 29 countries including Ireland, SAI Global offers a range of end-to-end solutions, risk management approaches, compliance, training, audit and certification services across the major components of sustainable performance that are relevant in the future Irish food sector.
